

Franklin University

FUSE (Franklin University Scholarly Exchange)

Learning Showcase 2014

International Institute for Innovative Instruction

11-14-2014

Institute of Criminal Justice Excellence: Providing Information through Innovation and Dialogue

Karen Miner-Romanoff

Franklin University, karen.miner-romanoff@franklin.edu

Jonathan McCombs

Franklin University, jonathan.mccombs@franklin.edu

Norman Robinson

The Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections

Follow this and additional works at: <https://fuse.franklin.edu/ss2014>

Part of the Criminology and Criminal Justice Commons

Recommended Citation

Miner-Romanoff, Karen; McCombs, Jonathan; and Robinson, Norman, "Institute of Criminal Justice Excellence: Providing Information through Innovation and Dialogue" (2014). Learning Showcase 2014. 31. <https://fuse.franklin.edu/ss2014/31>

This Presentation is brought to you for free and open access by the International Institute for Innovative Instruction at FUSE (Franklin University Scholarly Exchange). It has been accepted for inclusion in Learning Showcase 2014 by an authorized administrator of FUSE (Franklin University Scholarly Exchange). For more information, please contact fuse@franklin.edu.

Ohio Institute of Criminal Justice Excellence: Providing Information through Innovation and Dialogue

FRANKLIN
UNIVERSITY

Deputy Director
Norman Robinson

Mission

To provide a holistic, nonpartisan forum for diverse stakeholders and criminal justice practitioners that encourage the exchange of ideas, experiences, and data sharing while providing a professional forum for cross-agency information flow and discourse. It seeks to improve the quality and delivery of criminal justice services, advance knowledge of administrative best practices and the educational and civic mission of Franklin University and its criminal justice programs through consensus-driven best practices.

Ultimately, this is about much more than fairness for those who are released from prison. It's a matter of public safety and public good. It makes plain economic sense. It's about who we are as a people. And it has the potential to positively impact the lives of every man, woman, and child – in every neighborhood and city – in the United States. After all, whenever a recidivist crime is committed, innocent people are victimized. Communities are less safe. Burdens on law enforcement are increased. And already-strained resources are depleted even further” (Eric Holder, ABA Meeting, 2013).

Outcome Measures

1. Engender robust and holistic discussions on criminal justice issues with criminal justice professionals.
2. Share information, resources, and evidence based practice across criminal justice systems and subsystems.
3. Engage criminal justice professionals and the public with educational programming that provides a deeper understanding of the systemic issues facing society and the criminal justice system.
4. Identify and rectify gaps in research that will support and build up the capabilities of system components and professionals from a policy perspective.

A Recent Survey of Ohio Criminal Justice Professionals

How important could a state-wide, nonpartisan and holistic criminal justice coalition be for the future of Ohio's criminal justice system.

Very Important	60 %
Important	20 %

Dr. Karen Miner-Romanoff, J.D., Ph.D.
Dean of the College of Health and Public Administration

Jonathan McCombs, MSCJ, PhD (ABD)
Lead Faculty in CJAD

Corrections

OICJE

Courts

Law
Enforcement